As he drove through the great sea of the people that stretched from airport to the city, through all the cheers & tears of joy & never ending slogans of "Pakistan Zindabad" the Quaid showed no signs of his feelings. If he felt pride or joy in what he had done, he did not let anybody see it. Through all the excitement of those first days in the life of the young nation, the man who had made it possible remained clam, serious & sober. Perhaps he was thinking of the millions of people who had become homeless when India & Pakistan became separate countries. Perhaps he was thinking of the thousands who were being attacked and killed on the roads & railways as they tried to reach their homeland. There was much in those days of violence to sadden Jinnah who was a man of very strong feelings although he rarely showed it.

- What was the slogan of the people?
- Why did Quaid not show his feelings?
- Why is the nation called 'young'?
- What made him sad?
- What does sober mean in the context?
